

ELIOTEROS VEZELLOS TOPLE CASE OF GREECE

Will Ask for Bread and Shelter Necessary to Save the Lives of Hundreds of Thousands Greek Refugees Driven From Thrac by the Victorious Turks—Greek Delegation to Lausanne Will Endeavor to Prevent the Expulsion From Constantinople of the Patriarch of the Greek Orthodox Church.

Lausanne, Nov. 19.—(By The A. P.)—The Greek delegation to the Lausanne conference, the advance representatives of the Greek delegation are flying their blue and white flag from the hotel where they are stopping. Bilipteros Vezellos, former premier of Greece, is expected to arrive late tonight to plead Greece's case before the peace conference. The plea will be for charity—for bread and the shelter necessary to save the lives of hundreds and thousands of refugees driven from Thrac by the victorious Turks and for the protection of the rights of the Greek minorities scattered throughout Anatolia and European Turkey.

Greece will seek to retain special rights which its citizens enjoy in Turkey and which it claims are necessary to the life and happiness of Christians living in a Mohammedan state. The Greek delegation also will endeavor to protect the patriarch of the Greek Orthodox church in Constantinople and prevent his expulsion, which would remove the last remnant of the Byzantine empire from Istanbul.

The task of M. Vezellos at Lausanne is extremely difficult. While King Constantine and his advisers are blamed for the disastrous military advance in the Smyrna area, it was Vezellos who won a footing for Greece at Smyrna through the Scotts' treaty.

The entire statement, it is said, cannot forgive Vezellos for his excessive territorial claims and extravagant promises to the Greek military strength. David Lloyd George, the former British prime minister, who backed the claims of Vezellos at Paris, and many other statesmen of the Sevres conference are out of power; consequently Vezellos is the representative of defeated Greece, faces chiefly European diplomats who had no part in the previous negotiations and who are far from friendly to Greece made it possible for Turkey to defeat her.

Turkey is so boastful and is making such extravagant claims that she apparently believes she defeated Greece alone, rather than Greece alone. This is settling to the diplomats of the allied powers and it is believed this will make the situation of Vezellos an extremely trying one.

AMERICA WILL TAKE PART IN THE LAUSANNE CONFERENCE

Lausanne, Nov. 19.—(By The A. P.)—The indication tonight that the representatives of the United States government will take an active part in the Near Eastern conference which will open tomorrow with a plenary session at the Lausanne casino, was given by the American great international importance.

America will not only observe—she will speak and speak out vigorously, when she thinks the occasion demands it, and in a general way will allow the right of participation enjoyed by other countries in all things except actual voting.

Such, The Associated Press is informed, is the American position, and it is based on the fact that the United States, like the European powers, possesses interests in Turkey, and upon the American conviction that the United States cannot sit idly by and allow the future of the Turkish state without taking into consideration its views.

The American ambassador to Italy, Richard Washburn Child, and the American minister to Switzerland, Joseph C. Grew, plan to attend all the sessions of the conference, with Rear Admiral Bristol joining them later. The United States never declared war on Turkey and is not represented at Lausanne to take part in the revision of the treaty of Sevres, but she has a distinct interest in the question of the Turkish capitulations and the freedom of the straits.

Although it is hardly to define the position of the United States on the various problems to be discussed there seemed every prospect tonight that the American representatives, who lose their characterization of the conference as a "conference of the victors," will be able to bring about a settlement of the Turkish question.

When it comes to the taxation of foreigners or foreign property in Turkey, the impression prevails that the United States may advocate some modification of the existing exemption, in the belief that taxation by exemption is tantamount to unjust discrimination against the Turkish manufacturer or merchant. America, it is said, may favor out and out abolition of this capitulation or privilege and recommend separate taxation arrangements with the various powers.

Concerning an increase in the Turkish customs tariff on imports and exports, it is thought probable that the United States might endorse an international agreement similar to the one worked out for China at the Washington conference.

On the customs question the United States apparently shows no intention to set alone, but, on the contrary, in the closest harmony with the other great powers.

It is recalled that on Sept. 10, 1914, the state department at Washington was officially informed by the Ottoman government of its intention to abrogate all capitulations beginning Jan. 1, but that the American ambassador to Constantinople was instructed to notify the Turkish government that the United States could not acquiesce in this.

The intention of the American delegates to assume an active role seems not to be generally known in Lausanne today, but the European powers would undoubtedly welcome American activity as compared with American aloofness at the Genoa and The Hague conferences.

The weight of America's word, it is expected, will be regarded as greatly affecting the course of the deliberations, all the more so as it is deemed that America is without prejudice. Despite this intention of "standing" American interests, the United States is described as unflinching.

Newberry Resigns From U. S. Senate

Resignation Under Date of November 18 Asks That It Become Effective Immediately.

Washington, Nov. 19.—Senator Truman H. Newberry of Michigan, who tonight took a place in the senate has been a subject of long and bitter controversy, has submitted his resignation with a request that it become effective immediately.

In a letter to Governor Grosbeck, Mr. Newberry said he had been impelled to retire voluntarily because of the defeat of his republican colleague, Senator Townsend, in the election of November 7. The turn of events, he said, would make it "futile" for him to attempt to continue his public service since he continually would be "championed by partisan political persecution."

Reviewing the outstanding features of the controversy which grew out of his election four years ago over Henry Ford, his democratic opponent, he declared his right to a seat in a senate had been "fully confirmed." He added that in the future, there seemed to be opportunities for public service he would not hesitate to offer himself.

The resignation brings to an end a fight which already has made political history and supported by a large following in Michigan of a conspiracy to violate election laws. Senator Newberry appealed to the supreme court, which declared unconstitutional the statute under which he was accused.

The senate itself, after a long investigation, finally confirmed the title to a seat by a margin of five votes. In the campaign just closed, the case was an issue in many states.

A copy of the letter of resignation sent to Governor Grosbeck was received today to Vice President Coolidge by Mrs. Newberry's secretary, Mr. Newberry is at his home in Detroit. The letter to the governor, dated November 18, was as follows:

"I tender herewith my resignation as United States senator from Michigan to take immediate effect.

"I am compelled to take this action because at the recent election, notwithstanding his long and faithful public service and his adherence to the principles of constructive republicanism, which he has held in common with me, Senator Townsend was defeated. While this failure to re-elect him may have been brought about in part by over four years of continuous propaganda of misrepresentation, it is a fact that a majority of the vote in Michigan and other states where friends and political enemies alike have suffered defeat, will demand that a resignation be accepted with grace and dignity to the peace conference at Lausanne.

"This situation renders futile further service by me in the United States senate, where I have consistently supported the progressive policies of President Harding's administration. My work there has been and would continue to be hampered by partisan political persecution and I, therefore, cheerfully return my resignation to the people from whom I received it.

"I desire to record an expression of my gratitude for the splendid friendship, loyalty and devotion of those who have supported me in a long and arduous career, experiences unparalleled in the political history of our country. By direction of the democratic administration, these began immediately upon my nomination to the senate, and have been continued by the republican administration. I am deeply indebted to the many friends who have stood by me in my political career, and to the many who have stood by me in my private life. I am deeply indebted to the many who have stood by me in my political career, and to the many who have stood by me in my private life.

"On appeal, the supreme court of the United States reversed the action of the lower court, because, as stated by Chief Justice White, of the grave misapprehension and the gross misapplication of the statute which was also declared unconstitutional by the supreme court. In view of my past and present record, and my belief that the senate should be a body of men who are not only patriotic and unselfish, but who are also men of high character and high ability, I believe it is my duty to resign.

"For those who so patriotically and unselfishly worked for my election, and in defense of my own honor and that of my family, I have fought the fight and kept the faith. The time has now come, however, when I can conscientiously lay down the burden and this I most fully do. If in the future there seems to be opportunities for public service, I shall not hesitate to offer my services to the state which I love and the country I serve.

"In his letter to the vice president under date of November 17, Mr. Newberry said:

"I enclose herewith copy of my resignation which I have this day tendered to the governor of the state of Michigan and I respectfully request that this be read into the records of the senate, as I believe it to be of public interest."

"In terminating my service as senator, I beg to express once more to you my deep sense of thankfulness for your many courtesies and friendly consideration."

Frank Bacon, Widely Known Actor, Dead

Achieved Fame in the Part of "Bill Jones" in "Lightnin'"—Suffered Heart Attack.

Chicago, Nov. 19.—Frank Bacon, one of the most widely known actors on the American stage as the result of his success in the part of "Bill Jones" in "Lightnin'" which he helped to write, died at his hotel here today.

After four and one-half years in the role, Bacon was compelled by illness to retire a week ago. He had been suffering from arterial sclerosis for some time, but he declared he was "just tired" and would resume his work in two weeks.

Accompanied by his wife and daughter, Mrs. Mathew Aton, he was taken to an outlying hotel, in the hope that he would rally sufficiently to be moved to his home in the east. With the cheerful optimism which characterized the part of "Lightnin'" Bill Jones" in the play, Bacon insisted that he would soon be out. Saturday he suffered a heart attack, and fell into a coma from which he never rallied.

He is survived by his wife, Maryville, Calif., fifty-eight years old. He left school when he was fourteen years old, becoming successively a sheep-herder, an advertising solicitor, newspaper editor, and candidate for the senate in 1904. Defeated in his aspirations for political honors, he turned to the stage, joining a stock company. His first role was that of a passing automobile in a farce in a barroom. He later went to New York and appeared in "The Fortune Hunter," "Stop Thief," "The Cinderella Man" and "Lightnin'."

Mr. Bacon's greatest success was in the role of "Lightnin' Bill Jones," in which he appeared more than 2,000 times in the past five years. He had collaborated with Whinnell Smith in the writing of the play, which he had years in New York and nearly a year and a half here.

Worn down by the steady grind, Mr. Bacon had some time before being finally prevailed on to take a rest. But there was nothing in his last performance, a week ago Saturday, to indicate his ill health. Perhaps he drew his hand across his wrinkled brow a little more realistically; perhaps the break in his voice was just a trifle more real.

"Are you all right?" He was asked by his wife after the curtain fell.

"Yes, yes," replied Mr. Bacon. "I'm all right, but, oh, I'm so tired."

FIRST WOMAN SENATOR MAY SIT WITH THAT BODY TODAY

Mrs. W. H. Felton of Georgia Will Await Developments or the Senate Floor—Will Occupy the Seat for a Day Only—Senator George Plans to Remain in the Senate Cloak Room and Not Claim His Seat Until Tomorrow—Vice President Coolidge is Being Urged to Rule Against Mrs. Felton Taking the Seat.

Washington, Nov. 19.—Congress will meet at noon tomorrow in special session called by President Harding primarily to consider the administration ship subsidy bill. With only two weeks remaining until the beginning of the regular December session, it is expected to sit continuously until a one day adjournment March 3.

Efforts of Mrs. W. H. Felton of Georgia, first woman senator, to obtain a seat in the senate for a day promised unusual interest in the customary out-and-out opening routine. Whether she will be seated still remains a problem awaiting developments on the senate floor. The 57-year-old "Grand Old Lady of Georgia" was appointed by Governor Hardwick to succeed the late Senator Watson.

Mr. Felton was born in Maryville, Calif., fifty-eight years ago. He left school when he was fourteen years old, becoming successively a sheep-herder, an advertising solicitor, newspaper editor, and candidate for the senate in 1904. Defeated in his aspirations for political honors, he turned to the stage, joining a stock company. His first role was that of a passing automobile in a farce in a barroom. TURKISH THEY PLAN TO ASSASSINATE VEZELLOS

Lausanne, Nov. 19.—(By The A. P.)—Indignant denial was made today by Turkish circles here today of a report said to have been printed in London newspapers declaring the Kemalists had sent two assassins to Lausanne to kill former Premier Vezellos. The Turkish press declared that assassination was not the weapon of the Ottoman state, adding, "our arms alone speak when it becomes necessary on the field of battle."

The reports printed in London are said to have been based on information alleged to have emanated from the Greek vice-consul at Yarna, who claimed that the deceased had been shot by two men who murdered Ali Kemal and Riza Tevfik. According to the Turkish, Ali Kemal, a journalist, was not assassinated by an individual but was hatched by a mob of angry Turks in the streets of Istanbul. Riza Tevfik, the Turkish agent, is a Turkish traitor who fled to Egypt, and is still alive.

FRENCH EVACUATION OF ADRIANOPLE POSTPONED

Adrianople, Nov. 19.—(By The A. P.)—The French evacuation of Adrianople was postponed from Friday until November 25 because the Turkish gendarmes and officials who had arrived in Adrianople were insufficient in number to take over the city. The Turkish forces have been required to police and administer the territory already delivered over by the allies.

This general has been well received by the Greek forces, but the Greek forces have crossed the Maritsa river, but Greek gendarmes are covering the east bank of the river close to the only bridge over the stream, ready to make a quick crossing.

The Greeks are searching trains from the east for Kemalists while the Kemalists on their side are doing likewise for Greeks. The Kemalists have instructed the railroads to employ only Turks and Jews on trains entering Thrac.

TO ABOLISH CENSORSHIP OF PRESS IN CONSTANTINOPLE

London, Nov. 19.—A Reuters despatch from Constantinople says the allied high commissioners, after receiving assurances from Riza Pasha, the Turkish governor of Constantinople, that he personally would see to it that the newspapers refrained from publishing anything which might work against the safety of the allied troops and public order, unanimously decided to abolish the allied censorship beginning November 19.

TALK ON MARKETING TO THE NATIONAL GROWER

Wilkins, Kas, Nov. 18.—Need of better marketing facilities in the United States was stressed by Louis A. Tabor, director of agriculture for Ohio, in an address before the national Grower tonight.

Nine tenths of America's farm crops were produced and sold this year close to the producer, yet the farmer, yet the consumer is paying all that the shopkeeper is to pay," he said. "No remedy can be found only in a better marketing organization."

SAVING BERNHARDT IN AUTOMOBILE ACCIDENT

Paris, Nov. 19.—Sarah Bernhardt, while motoring in San Remo yesterday, had a narrow escape from injury. The rear axle of her automobile broke and the machine almost capsized. Mrs. Bernhardt suffered slightly from shock and proceeded on her journey by train.

FIFTIETH ANNIVERSARY OF JESUITS IN MASSACHUSETTS

Boston, Nov. 19.—Catholic clergymen from the archdiocese and various sections of New England are attending the five days' conference commemorating the fiftieth anniversary of the existence of the Jesuit Order in Massachusetts.

The conference opened today with a solemn pontifical mass in St. Mary's church, North End, which Cardinal O'Connell presided. The sessions will conclude on Thursday.

RESCUED FROM QUICKSAND BY POLICEMEN AND FIREMEN

Camden, N. J., Nov. 19.—A man believed to be Richard Collins, of New York, was in a critical condition tonight after a four-hour struggle to get him from quicksand. He was rescued by policemen and firemen who heard his cries only when he had sunk to his shoulders.

It was still dark this morning when Collins' cries were heard by a policeman who happened to be passing. The man, who was struggling in the quicksand, turned his searchlights upon the mud in which the man was slowly sinking to his death. Finally a moving heave was made, and the man was pulled out. The police said for the fire department, which brought ropes and boards to reach Collins and pass a rope beneath his arms. A policeman and fireman of the rescue party also had to be called out with ropes. Collins is said to have lost his way while returning to the ferry. He is suffering chiefly from exposure, and may have received internal injuries.

EVIDENCE IN HALL-MILLS MURDER CASE TO BE GIVEN TODAY

New Brunswick, N. J., Nov. 19.—Final preparations were completed today for presenting to the Somerset county grand jury tomorrow the evidence gathered in the nine weeks that have passed since the murder of Rev. Edward Wheeler Hall and Mrs. Eleanor Reinhardt Mills.

Special Prosecutor William Mott, who has remained silent as to the number and names of the witnesses who will be called in the presentation of the case, today issued a brief statement denying that he is confident of obtaining indictments.

"I was never confident," the prosecutor said. "The evidence, however, is ready and the case is now up to the grand jury."

There are three women on the grand jury which will hear the story of the case as it has been built up by the prosecution. The number of witnesses who will appear is estimated authoritatively at fifty.

NAVAL WIRELESS TELLS OF EARTHQUAKE AT HILO, T. H.

San Francisco, Nov. 19.—A radio message picked up at the San Diego station of the naval wireless system, and relayed here, reporting to come from Hilo, T. H., told of an earthquake and tidal wave last night. Efforts to communicate with the radio station, operated by a private concern, later were unsuccessful, but radio men declared it was not unusual that station to communicate direct with mainland stations.

DE VALERA ISSUES MESSAGE TO THE PEOPLE OF IRELAND

Dublin, Nov. 19.—(By The A. P.)—Eamonn De Valera, leader of the Irish republicans, in a message to the people of Ireland today, asserts that the British government has given orders for the execution of Erskine Childers, and declares that such a crime will "make the men and women of our race hang their heads in shame."

"If this order is carried out," he continues, "not all the blood that will flow as a consequence will expel our national guilt. We shall be called a nation of slaves, and the slaves of slaves, and we shall not be left with an answer."

Declaring that Childers remained incorruptible when many became corrupt, he concludes: "If it is not the people's duty to resist a tyrannical government, should be sacrificed to any of Churchill's hate, then within an hour you will rise up and slay from the positions they have occupied and die, and those who would dare to slay a man for ever the fair name of this nation."

THREE MEN KILLED IN AN EXPLOSION IN DUBLIN

Dublin, Nov. 19.—(By The A. P.)—Three men were killed and three badly injured by an explosion at Inchicore Dublin, last night. Just prior to the explosion a party of men was seen carrying a heavy article from the field beside the Naxa road.

The explosion was like a roar of thunder and was accompanied by a great burst of light. People living in a nearby houses were considerably shocked by the violence of the detonation. The dead men were identified as James J. O'Connell, a 40-year-old man, and two others whose names were not known. The bodies of the three men were found near the scene of the explosion, and one belief is expressed that the victims were preparing an ambush.

YALE STUDENT KILLED ON THE MILFORD TURNPIKE

New Haven, Nov. 19.—David Phipps Parker, a senior at Yale university, of 574 Riverside drive, New York city, was killed on the Milford turnpike today when his automobile struck a tree and overturned while going north on Bedford street. The injured man had been driving the car at a high rate of speed when the accident occurred and that they had been driving him to drive more slowly.

The dead man, who was from Stamford, Conn., was identified as David Phipps Parker. The men injured were Victor Ferrante, who was taken to the Stamford hospital with a fractured leg and possible internal injuries, and Michael Dele, who was injured slightly. They also are from Stamford.

Sylvester was driving the men to their homes from a restaurant when the car, in rounding a curve, swung into the curb suddenly and skidded fifty feet when it crashed into a tree and overturned. Gifford, who was sitting next to Sylvester, was killed instantly. The accident occurred at a high rate of speed, and the car was traveling at about 40 miles an hour when it crashed.

The investigation this afternoon. Friends of Sylvester reported to the police that they believed the accident had occurred because of a defective steering gear about which the dead driver had complained a week ago.

CLEMENCEAU PLACED WREATH ON GRAVE OF ROOSEVELT

New York, Nov. 19.—Georges Clemenceau, war premier of France, motored to Oyster Bay today and laid a wreath on the grave of Theodore Roosevelt.

The gray, old Tiger, himself an apostle of preparedness, spoke no word as he stood before the grave of America's wielder of the big stick. But he was visibly moved. He kept his eyes fixed in every detail of the little fenced-in enclosure that has become a shrine for many Americans.

Then he stood for a moment more with a far-away look, deeply immersed in thought. Finally he turned away and trudged slowly down the winding path of Youngs Memorial and back to the hotel. He walked down the broad road, and Roosevelt used to sit to watch the sail boats on Oyster Bay.

He walked to the rear of the house, closely inspecting the low structure, stately but simple on the crest of Sagamore Hill.

Archibald Roosevelt, who was a soldier in France, conducted the ceremony, where Mrs. Roosevelt greeted him. He spent some time in Roosevelt's famous trophy room. Then he motored back to the Manhattan residence of Charles H. Gibson, which he is making his home here.
